Privacy and Data

The Home Interiors Writer website stores your email address, in order to send you the blog posts you have signed up for. These normally arrive on a fortnightly basis, but there may be occasional posts at other times. Emails and blog posts may also include links to a historical site, supplier, business or related information source where appropriate.

We don't ask for any other personal information (for example, your name or address).

If you wish to unsubscribe, click on the 'unsubscribe' button at the bottom of your fortnightly email. Your email address will be removed from our files completely at that point, we won't contact you again.

You can also email me directly at rachael@homeinteriorswriter.com to raise any question or complaints related to your data.

We never sell or share the data we hold and take every precaution to keep it all safe.

How we use Cookies

Cookies are small pieces of data, stored in text files, that are stored on your computer or other device when websites are loaded in a browser. They are widely used to 'remember' you and your preferences, either for a single visit (through a 'session cookie') or for multiple repeat visits (using a 'persistent cookie'). They ensure a consistent and efficient experience for visitors and perform essential functions such as allowing users to log in and comment on posts. Cookies may be set by the site that you are visiting (known as 'first party cookies'), or by other websites who serve us content on that site (third party cookies').

This Website Will:

Track the pages you visit via Google Analytics.

Allow you to share pages with social networks such as Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest.

This Website will not:

Intentionally share any personal information with third parties. Homeinteriorswriter.com can take no responsibility for your private information once you have left this site or have clicked on any external leading link included within a blog post or page on this site.

To find out more on how to manage and delete cookies, visit aboutcookies.org